

"Arab Spring" could change the world

Every day we can watch in our TV set news about demonstrations, protests, repressions, and governance changes in many Arab countries such as Tunisia, Egypt, Libya, Syria... something is changing in these civilization, but also in the world.

Until now the most extended opinion in developed countries is that it is almost impossible to close the gap between Western and Middle East civilizations due to religion, culture and style of life factors, and mainly because Arab people do not want to change. But suddenly the Arab Spring is changing this perception because the main characteristic of these movements is that they are manage for people, mainly young, without links with Islamic extremist, religious groups or ethnic roots. In fact protesters are people of all conditions with the single goal to modify the "traditional" social and economic unbalance between civilizations.

This new framework probably will produce key changes in the political, social and economic relationship, as we know them at present. It seems clear that some principles should be reevaluated to face the new situation trying to support this "fresh wind" coming from Arab countries.

It is time that politicians, multilateral organizations, and governments take note of this change and joint efforts in order to maintain this impulse to close the "traditional" gap between cultures that only has negative consequences for both sides. Furthermore economical Institutions, financial and commercial, have to search for new procedures to improve the economic roots and provide better tools to build a more efficient economical structure for these countries as the only way to achieve a better relationship among countries.

This is a unique opportunity to change the strategic relationships and maybe the life in the world that we cannot lose. We must face this challenge.

Miguel Rodríguez Sánchez, International Review

Comentario: Logra hacer un análisis y especular sobre el futuro.

El desarrollo de ideas y la estructura son correctos. Aunque como le indico no puedo entender una parte del párrafo final.

xxx xx 21/10/11 14:49

Comentario [1]: Caps: Araba Spring Could Change the World

xxx xx 21/10/11 14:50

Comentario [2]: Preposition: to watch on TV

xxx xx 21/10/11 14:50

Comentario [3]: For style, avoid three dots in essays and articles.

xxx xx 22/10/11 10:05

Comentario [4]: Agreement: these civilizations. Although, I would say these societies; these societies belong to the same civilization.

xxx xx 22/10/11 10:05

Comentario [5]: Suggestion. Use the past: was

xxx xx 22/10/11 10:06

Comentario [6]: One word: lifestyle

xxx xx 21/10/11 14:54

Comentario [7]: Participle and preposition: managed by civilians

xxx xx 21/10/11 15:08

Comentario [8]: Suggestion. A very idiomatic expression: people from all walks of life

xxx xx 21/10/11 15:09

Comentario [9]: I think we can speak of a difference, more than an unbalance.

xxx xx 21/10/11 15:09

Comentario [10]: Vocab: relations

xxx xx 21/10/11 15:10

Comentario [11]: Period.

xxx xx 22/10/11 10:09

Comentario [12]: Simplify: economic and financial organizations

xxx xx 22/10/11 10:08

Comentario [13]: Add a preposition: to search for

xxx xx 22/10/11 10:09

Comentario [14]: Better: the economic basis

xxx xx 22/10/11 10:09

Comentario [15]: Economical means cheap; economic

xxx xx 22/10/11 10:10

Comentario [16]: Plural: better economic relations among countries.

xxx xx 22/10/11 10:10

Comentario [17]: As above: relations

xxx xx 22/10/11 10:11

Comentario [18]: I do not know what you mean by this.

Debe mejorar principalmente la precisión del vocabulario (no confundir economical con economic, relations con relationships).

También debe mejorar el uso de algunas preposiciones.

Nota: 2+. Se acerca al tres, pero le aconsejo que lea más en inglés para poder usar un lenguaje más idiomático y preciso.