

5-08-AL42

WINDS OF CHANGE OVER ARAB COUNTRIES.

This is a historic year for Islamic countries due to the popular revolutions started in Tunisia and Egypt, followed by the current conflicts in Libya, Syria, Yemen, etc. After centuries being dominated in silence, people in those regimes are decided to raise their voices to be heard.

Comentario [s1]: Which began

Comentario [s2]: Of being

Comentario [s3]: Kept silent

Comentario [s4]: have

The spark was the failure in the dynastic succession in Tunisia. The second issue took place in Egypt, because another familiar transition. The third is the war in Libya, about to reach an end, in theory; confrontation provoked once more for the intention of a dictator in order to give the power to someone with his blood.

Comentario [s5]: incident

Comentario [s6]: of another succession question.

Comentario [s7]: Which is about to come to

Comentario [s8]: A confrontation

Comentario [s9]: Because of

Comentario [s10]: To pass on power to a member of his family.

Comentario [s11]: The younger

Comentario [s12]: for

Comentario [s13]: not necessary

Comentario [s14]: political succession took place

There are more places where Islamic citizens, especially youth ones, are showing their appetite of freedom and democracy. Perhaps, the more critical situation is that of the Syria, where, despite the fact that their own hereditary affair was ten years ago, they feel the same sensation.

One thing is the spark, but the main motor of this disenchantment is the concept of power in those places. They denied the chance of any democracy long time ago, when a big part of the world embraced it.

Comentario [s15]: their people the

Comentario [s16]: a long

Democracy is not a magic solution for everything, however is less arbitrary than dictatorial or supposedly theocratic options. In the past, probably they did not know that, but nowadays, mainly thank to the internet, lots of individuals are opening their eyes.

Comentario [s17]: it is

Comentario [s18]: people

Comentario [s19]: thanks

The consequences of these movements are unpredictable. If they success, the strategic relations are to be adapted, the society in those nations will change radically with the unstoppable advance of democracy and, with a bit of luck, economically, things can only get better for them.

Comentario [s20]: succeed

Comentario [s21]: geo-political relationships will have to be rethought

Miguel Rodríguez Sánchez

Good attempt. Be careful with some of your expressions/vocabulary-at times a native reader might not be completely sure of what it is you are trying to say. But you have made some good points and have managed to engage in some speculation.SLP 2+